

Brad J. Monterio is the Executive Vice President of Learning, Licensing & Sales at The Institute of Internal Auditors (IIA). He oversees all learning product development and distribution, learning technologies, event management, portfolio strategy, licensing, sponsorship, commercial partnerships, advertising, and enterprise-wide sales with a staff of more than 50 professionals.

Brad has nearly 30 years of experience in accounting, audit, governance, risk, and compliance (GRC), and technology sectors. He is skilled in eXtensible Business Reporting Language (XBRL) and business reporting technologies, sustainability and integrated reporting standards and best practices, applying an innovation mindset and methodology to solving business challenges, developing sound strategy and market positioning, forming meaningful partnerships, developing new revenue sources, enhancing value propositions, and disrupting outdated business models.

As an ESG subject matter expert, Brad has been working in the global sustainability movement for more than 15 years. He is The IIA voting representative to the Integrated Reporting & Connectivity Council (IRCC), part of the IFRS Foundation, as well as to the Advisory Board of the ESG Exchange. He regularly speaks, writes, and blogs on technology, corporate disclosure, data governance, integrated reporting, XBRL, ESG/sustainability, marketing, and communications issues. Brad has also held various national and international commission roles for diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) efforts in the accounting, auditing, and actuarial sectors.

Brad was a global director on the Institute of Management Accountants (IMA) Board for 12 years. He is a current member of the IMA Sustainable Business Management Committee, and chair emeritus of the IMA Diversity & Inclusion Committee as well as the Technology Solutions & Practices (TS&P) Committee. He was also a director on the board of the Casualty Actuarial Society for 6 years. He is a current member of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) Technology Global Forum, the Integrated Reporting US Working Group, the Thomson Reuters Foundation Equity, Diversity and Inclusion (DEI) Advisory Board, and also sits on the University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA) Extension Internal Audit Advisory Board.

Brad has a Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Dartmouth College. He is an artist, avid traveler, and antique/flea market fanatic.