Understanding IT Risk Monitoring and Reporting

With cyber threats and data compromise on the rise, there is greater pressure on internal auditors to ensure the organization's cyber risk and threat monitoring and reporting controls are operating effectively. In this session, we will review key areas of monitoring and reporting that companies should consider.

Date: October 25, 2024

Time: 9:00 - 12:00 pm; light breakfast beginning at 8:30 am

Location: Valvoline Headquarters, 100 Valvoline Way, Lexington, KY 40509

Presented by: Cherry Bekaert - Audrey Magennis, Steve Ursillo, and Scott Rexroat

Areas to be covered are as follows:

- SOC 1 and SOC 2 Reporting: What's Required, Why You Need One, and Considerations for SOC Vendor Selection
- Artificial Intelligence: What It Is, Why It's Here, How It's Impacting Security Across All Industries
- Security Monitoring: An overview of current industry threats, examples of monitoring tools and controls, and reporting examples through Management and Board Committees
- IT/Cyber Risk Assessments: High Level Review of IT, Information Security/Cybersecurity, and Artificial Intelligence Risk Assessment Methodologies

This event is for more than just us internal auditors! Notify your IT departments, reach out to your ISO, and pass along to those that handle your vendor management program. There are lots of departments that can gain information from this program.

Pricing: $75 members; $90 nonmembers
